The PLACE Independent School will support any employee who whistleblows to protect them from bullying, intimidation, harassment or reprisals.

Any employee who Whistleblows will be provided with confidential support, this will usually be a member of the Management Team to discuss any concerns. - neglect or abuse of clients, or
- other unethical conduct

Please be aware this is not an exhaustive list, if in doubt report it. Under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998 an employee, cannot be dismissed because of whistleblowing providing they follow the procedure and have a reasonable belief that their disclosures are made in the public interest. The following people are also protected: agency workers, individuals training with an employer, but not employed and any self-employed workers, if supervised or working off site.

Workers who aren't employees cannot claim unfair dismissal due to whistleblowing, however, they are still protected and can claim 'detrimental treatment'.

Should an employee feel they cannot report their concern to their line manager, they are to report to the head of schools.
